DCC (College) Accounting

Why take this business elective?

Follow the money! Learn the language of money. Many consider accounting to be the best route to a successful career in business because accounting has always been considered the language and basic tool of every business. Learn to analyze, record, classify, summarize, and interpret accounting data for all types of businesses. Accounting is not a math course, but a study of money- where it comes from, where goes it goes, and how much has it changed. If you are thinking of majoring or minoring in Business, a college accounting course is a requirement. Taking DCC Accounting will fulfill an accounting requirement earning you six credits and give you a head start on college.

How will this course help me in real life?

Previous students have said, “All businesses need an accountant.” ~A.B.
Making money is why we are in business. Accounting keeps track of that money.

When will I ever use this again?

This course is for you if you are planning to minor or major in Accounting in college. Every business major in college will be required to take Accounting.
